“ I met Monroe working at the Buffalo Bill Dam Visitor Center. Over time we became close friends and took many trips into Yellowstone NP as well as other places. Monroe loved gardening, his passion for growing vegetables was sharing his work with many in town.

Monroe was a quiet gentle soul who shared his knowledge of life and care for others helping others in their time of need. A true Southern gentleman I will always treasure our friendship and our time together. I will see you again one day. Until then rest in peace knowing you made a difference in this world. I know that you and Sandra are together in heaven!

“ I had the honor of meeting Monroe over Thanksgiving dinner at a mutual friends home years ago and since then his friendship has been a valued part of both I and I'm sure everyone else he interacted with. The man was the true definition of a southern gentleman. Kind, caring, and compassionate towards all. His friendship has had a lasting impact here in Wyoming. If there were a few more people like him in this world, there's no telling how much more kinder of a place it would be. From your home out west and always in our hearts, rest well until we meet again.
