“ Youth is the time many memories are forged in our minds. These are the memories that I will think of when I remember my Uncle Mike. I will remember playing football in my grandparent's front yard, family softball games on Sunday afternoon and him teaching me how to play cork ball. I will remember that he gave me my first hunting vest, letting me drive his truck in the hay field when no one else would because I was too young.

I will remember that he was considered one of the best roofers around and him showing me his tricks on how to lay shingles quickly and correctly. I will remember that he always told me that I would be great at anything I did, that he bragged about me when he was around his friends, and that he always made me feel good about myself.

I will not remember the sickness and how he weak he had gotten. Finally I will remember two more things, the first, is last time that I saw him, just a few weeks ago, when I was trying to comfort him he once again was the one that made me feel good. I will never forget our conversation that day and what he told me. The second and most important is that he told me he was saved was spending eternity in heaven.

In loving memory,
Chris Pruett
